Fire Kills Man On Wedding Day

For Her—Heartbreak—Sophie White, 28, Brookline, had grief as her companion today. She revealed that John J. Gannon, dead in Brookline blaze, was to have wed her at noon today. Wedding was postponed from last night—forever, instead of for a day. (Story on Page 2.)

Fire Takes Life On Bridal Day

Where Fatal Flames Swept; Baby Among The Rescued

A bride-to-be who postponed her marriage from last night until this noon was cheated by death of the man she was to wed today.

A few hours before the ceremony was to take place he perished in flames in a Brookline house.

The "bride-to-have-been" is Miss Sophie White, 32, of Washington street, Brookline.

The dead fiance is John J. Gannon, 45-year-old World War veteran.

Six persons were injured in the blaze in a lodging house in School street. A dozen others, including three women and a three-months-old baby were rescued.

Miss White, a South Carolina girl, has been engaged in the nursing profession in Brookline since last April.

She was sleeping today as flames roared through the place that was Gannon's last home.

"I had agreed to marry him last night" she sobbed today, "but at the last minute something made me change my mind. Then I promised to go through with the ceremony this noon.

"Then neighbors awakened me this morning to tell me Jack had been burned to death!"

The nurse burst into sobs and collapsed at this point.

When she recovered, she told the rest of the tragic romance.

"We met in May and he told me he fell in love with me at first sight. Less than two weeks after we had been introduced by a mutual friend, we had taken out a license to wed but I insisted he would have to get a steady job before we were married.

AGREED TO WED

"I kept putting Jack off but yesterday afternoon, after spending the holiday together we returned to my house and after he

Soviet Pledges Aid to Czechs

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

LONDON, Sept. 6 (INS)—The Soviet Union, it was learned today, has notified France that Russia's vast military machine would come directly to the aid of Czechoslovakia the instant any German invasion strikes that country.

This disclosure was made by an authoritative source while the British and French armed forces on land, sea and in the air were placed on a virtual war footing coincident with Chancellor Hitler's opening of the momentous Nazi congress at Nuremberg.

LITVINOV EXPLAINS

As the Czech-German crisis came to the verge of the breaking point it was ascertained that the French charge d'affaires at Moscow called on Soviet Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov and asked him what action Russia would take if Czechoslovakia is attacked. Litvinov replied:

That the U. S. S. R. would immediately leap to the military aid of the Czechs. In this connection, Czech circles believe Russia would quickly dispatch 600 war planes to Czechoslovakia.

That Russia wants a common declaration by Britain, France and the Soviet Union, warning Hitler against aggression upon Czechoslovakia.

That if the German army marches against the Czechs, Russia would demand that Germany be branded an aggressor by The League of Nations.

FRANCE SPEEDS TROOPS

PARIS, Sept. 6 (AP)—France rushed trained reserve troops into her Maginot line today to give full fighting power to those famous fortifications along the German border.

Reports from frontier towns said all roads were under strong guard. Patrols were thrown out during the night between the line and the boundary, on the other side of which Germany moved troops on maneuvers into her new Siegfried line of fortifications during the week-end.

All corps commanders on duty at general headquarters in Paris were instructed to return to their commands. Leaves were cancelled throughout the army and air force.

The order summoning an undisclosed number of her 8,000,000 trained reserves to the colors was announced as hundreds of thousands of Nazi gathered in Nurnberg, Germany, where the French feared Chancellor Adolf Hitler might issue a virtual ultimatum to Czechoslovakia, a French ally, seeking to force maximum concessions for autonomy-seeking Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia.

The chamber of deputies' subcommittee on army affairs was called to meet in an urgent session to be devoted to the question of production of war material.

Hitler Lauds Might

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NUREMBERG, Germany, Sept. 6 (INS)—So powerful she will henceforth be courted as a friend rather than provoked as an enemy, Nazi Germany has emerged from "political and economic" isolation, Reichsfuehrer Hitler told the Nazi party congress today in an opening proclamation which temporarily shelved the Czechoslovakian autonomy dispute.

The Fuehrer also served notice on the whole world that henceforth, Germany fears no blockade by any power or powers in the event of war.

The only clue to new Nazi expansionist plans was afforded by Rudolph Hess, deputy Nazi leader, who in a brief address predicted that "all future actions of the Fuehrer will be blessed by the Almighty."

ATTACKS JEWRY

Hitler's own speech, read by Adolf Wagner, governor of Nuremberg, praised German economic independence, vigorously attacked international Jewry, lashed out at Bolshevism as an instrument of world destruction and warmly applauded Premier Mussolini for his expulsion of Jews from Italy.

Criticizing the "empty" phrases of Democratic statesmen and predicting world economics will perish if products are destroyed instead of increased and accumulated, the Fuehrer said:

"Our economic activities will always be guided by this resolution: National security first. Only then will German defense forces be in a position to protect at any and all times the freedom and interests of the Reich.

ISOLATION OVER

"Only then will Germany be of greatest value as a friend and ally of every one.

"If I say that on the occasion of the 10th party congress, it is in the firm knowledge that politically, as well as economically, the period of Germany's isolation is over.

"The Reich possesses the strong world powers as friends."

Rapping foreign charges that Germany is growing economically weaker, the Fuehrer said the Reich's only weakness consisted of a shortage of labor.

"We can afford such a weakness," he said, "and leave unemployment to the democracies."

Germany, the Fuehrer declared, owes its economic strength to two factors.

NO FEAR OF BLOCKADE

"First," he said, "we have had an extraordinary good harvest.

RENDEZVOUS WITH DEATH—Medical Examiner Timothy Leary of Boston enters grim undertaking parlor, left, to view the mortal remains of little Barbara Driscoll. Above Barbara before death. See picture page.

By JAMES F. McENANEY
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 6—An 11-year-old girl—a former playmate of slain little Barbara Elizabeth Driscoll—was ready today to confront the paroled state prison convict held for questioning in the brutal killing.

The prospective child witness and two other girls etween the ages of 9 and 11 were recently molested in a theater here, police said.

The oldest of the three later saw on a Portsmouth street the man who had annoyed them.

"I'M AN EX-CON"

This oldest girl said today she'd know the man again. He terrified her so she'd never forget him, she told police.

Authorities planned to place the convict-suspect in a line-up and ask the girl to pick him out.

Over nad over, he repeated his protestation of innocence. Unshaven and pale under his stubble of beard, he insisted:

"Sure I'm an ex-con." But you've got me wrong in the murder of this little girl.

"I might steal. I might break into a house. But I've never hurt a kid. So help me I never laid hands on a child in my life."

STONE CRUSHES SKULL

The battered body of eight-year old Barbara was found under a railroad shed, near the Boston & Maine yards, not far from her home.

Her skull had been crushed, apparently by a heavy stone.

Today, state and county prosecutors and Portsmouth police—men with set faces—relentlessly questioned a paroled state prison convict.

His hair is brown.

His interrogation—the second in 12 hours—was made in an upstairs anteroom in police headquarters here.

He wore only a pair of dungarees and a blue denim shirt, newly purchased for him by police.

His own clothes were being scrutinized under microscopes in Boston today by laboratory experts of the staff of Dr. Timothy Leary, Suffolk county medical examiner.

At the same time Dr. Leary, one of New England's foremost criminal pathologists, was comparing hair taken from the suspect's head with the hairs found gripped in the child murder victim's hand.

Stork Wins Race in Quincy

The stork won a race from the Cape to Boston City Hospital early today—in fact, the race ended in Quincy.

Policeman Harold Cain in a Quincy police cruiser spotted Francis Barry, Sydney street, Dorchester, driving his car at breakneck pace—but for once Barry wasn't ordered to "pull over to the curb."

In the car was Mrs. Barry, and—

Cain guided Barry to a nearby maternity hospital, but there was no room there. Dr. Edward G. Whitehouse, however, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Barry on a further, frantic dash to Quincy state hospital—but by the time they got there the baby already was born.

It's a 7¼-pound baby boy.

Mother and child both are "fine," doctors declared.

19 New Haven Cars Jump Track

Several of the cars went down an embankment, others turned partly over and still others were scattered along the roadbed.

Monk Chews His Mistress

The long-tailed, woolly-furred pet, resembling a monkey in appearance, escaped from a cage at the rear of the house and was crawling over Mrs. Davis when she awakened.

When she sought to remove it, the animal bit her hands, then sank its teeth into her thumb. A policeman shot the animal.

Braintree Gun Case Put Over

Charges of threatening two women detectives with a gun, lodged against Mrs. Mary DeMarsh "Hannaford," alleged Braintree hoax mother, were continued today to Sept. 14 in Quincy Court.

Mrs. DeMarsh, through her attorney, Nathan Lobe, pleaded not guilty and was released in $5200 bail.

Two women detectives, Anna Brown and Mrs. Effie Bligh, charged Mrs. DeMarsh "kidnaped" them at gun point on the grounds of the Hannaford estate, marched them to the home of a friend, and kept them prisoners there for several hours.

They had been hired by Thomas Hannaford, it was revealed, to guard his home from "trespassers"—meaning Mrs. DeMarsh, who, for a time last May, occupied the Hannaford house, refusing to budge despite Hannaford's annulment proceedings.

Hannaford, a wealthy Braintree contractor, asserted she attempted to palm off two children, taken from orphanages, as her own and his.

He obtained an annulment of their marriage on the grounds that it took place before the end of the statutory period following Mrs. DeMarsh's previous divorce.

Mrs. DeMarsh, explaining her trouble with the two women detectives to police, said she didn't know they were detectives, but thought they were her one-time husband's "girl friends."

Jailed for Stolen Sunday Joyride

Theodore Michalski, 18, Light street, Lynn, was sentenced in Lynn court today to six months in the House of Correction on a charge of having stolen an automobile Sunday night.

He drove the car to Manchester, police said, wrecked it there, "picked up" another car, and returned to Lynn.

Royal Bleeder Cut In Girl's Auto Crash

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 6 (AP) — The Count of Covadonga, former heir to the Spanish throne, was critically injured in an automobile accident early today.

He was riding in a machine driven by Miss Mildred Gaydon, 25, when the vehicle swerved from Biscayne boulevard and struck a pole. The count suffered severe lacerations of the forehead, a possible fracture of the skull and a broken right leg.

Miss Gaydon, a cigarette girl in a night club, was slightly bruised. She told officers she turned sharply to avoid a truck and lost control.

Hereditary hemophilea, which causes profuse bleeding from slight wounds, complicated the count's injuries. His secretary, Jack Fleming, said former King Alfonso would be notified by telephone in Rome of his son's accident.

The count, Alfonso de Bourbon y Battenberg, is 31. He renounced his title of Prince of Asturias and his claim to the Spanish throne in 1933 when he married his first wife, Edelmira Sampedro-Ocejo y Robato, daughter of a Havana merchant. They were divorced.

He then married Maria Rocafort, daughter of a Havana dentist. They, too, were divorced. Court proceedings last winter were delayed when the count suffered hemorrhages, the result of injuring his shoulder entering an automobile.

Woman Witness In Graves Case Retains Lawyer

Attorney Bertram A. Sugarman, Devonshire street, Boston, was retained today as counsel by Mrs. Lillian H. Thomas, wealthy St. Louis woman subpoenaed here as a material witness in the State's case against Frederick H. Graves.

Mrs. Thomas is in Boston, having come here voluntarily from New York, when the subpoena was obtained Saturday.

Sugarman said he would confer with Assistant District Attorney Frederick T. Doyle, in command of Graves' prosecution. Mrs. Thomas, however, was not expected to be present at the conference.

As revealed exclusively in The Boston Sunday Advertiser on Sunday, Mrs. Thomas was met at quarantine in New York, on her return from a trip abroad, by two Boston police officers who questioned her concerning her knowledge of Graves' activities in the Middle West before he was brought back here on perjury charges in the Curley-Santosuosso case.

Graves now is in Charles street jail awaiting trial. Mrs. Thomas revealed that he sought to enlist her in a proposed wine-grape company in connection with which, she said, he told her a Boston business man was giving him $20,000. He also told her he was being "paid to testify" in the Curley case, she said.

Kelly Hurls Collusion Cry

By ALFRED D. WHELTON

Heavy oratorical guns boomed on both sides of the political battlefront today as opposing forces entered upon the last two weeks of the bitterly-fought State primary campaign.

Launching his attack from a new angle, Lieut.-Gov. Francis E. Kelly fired a broadside at Governor Hurley for "collusion" with State Insurance Commissioner Charles F. J. Harrington in allegedly delaying announcement of the 1939 compulsory automobile insurance rates.

"I am informed," wrote the lieutenant-governor to the chief executive, "that your insurance commissioner is intentionally delaying the announcement of the 1939 rates until the last possible moment and is in collusion with you in an attempt to postpone this announcement until after primary day.

"In behalf of automobile owners of Massachusetts I request you to instruct your insurance commissioner to announce the rates immediately.

"The automobile owners are entitled to this information, which is being deliberately withheld for your selfish, political purposes only."

At the same time former Governor Curley charged Governor Hurley had "insulted the intelligence" of Massachusetts Democrats. He said:

"Governor Hurley poses as a Democrat He has failed to prove that he is a Democrat. He poses as a friend of labor but he has scorned labor. He poses as the friend of the unemployed who have clamored for two years for a champion at the State House.

"He has done serious damage to the Democratic party. His renomination would wreck the party and guarantee restoration of Republicans to dominate in the Commonwealth.

"Intelligent leadership and intelligent action under James M. Curley, as governor, will strengthen and harmonize the Democratic party and assure permanent Democratic control of the state government."

* * *

Labor Day was a busy one for Governor Hurley in Boston, Cambridge and Lawrence. In the latter city, before the Lawrence Central Labor Union, the Governor pointed to labor legislation he had either sponsored or signed and stressed, especially, his support, with the Massachusetts delegation, in behalf of the Federal wage and hour bill.

The Governor is scheduled to begin a swing of the state tomorrow with the first appeal to voters in western Massachusetts.

* * *

Judge Kenneth Johnson continued his drive for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor in an appeal for the vote of labor. The jurist stressed that he was the son of an immigrant Swedish worker who had striven hard to give his son an education.

NO SECRET—Martha Hanson of Milton, above, will wed Elbie Fletcher the Boston Bees' first baseman, a couple of days after the season ends. See "Boston After Dark."

LIBRARIES FOR PRINCESSES

PARIS (INS)—Two complete libraries have been offered the little English royal princesses by the city of Paris. The first library is for immediate reading and consists mostly of children's books, while the second is for their diversion when they are 18.

Roosevelt Set To Push Purge

DENTON, Md., Sept. 6 (INS)—From the heart of Maryland's eastern shore farming community, President Roosevelt had today informed the nation that he intends to fight unceasingly to keep the Democratic party liberal.

Following his speech here he went to his Hyde Park, N. Y., home for a few days visit.

Some 10,000 residents of the famed eastern shore gathered in anticipation of a presidential knock-down, drag-out blast at the candidacy of Senator Millard Tydings and a whole-hearted endorsement of Representative David J. Lewis.

Although the President did not mention Tydings by name, he called the name of Rep. Lewis in most positive tones after having recited to the crowd that veteran legislator's long record of activity in promotion of progressive social legislation.

In his original text, Lewis' name was not included. Pres. Roosevelt interpolated it and drew a loud cheer from the throng assembled before him.

McCarran 2-1 In Nevada Poll

RENO, Nev., Sept. 6 (INS)—Backed for renomination in today's primary by conservative Democrats and Republicans, U. S. Senator Pat A. McCarran was a four-to-one choice to defeat two 100 per cent New Deal candidates.

McCarran, who opposed the administration's court reform and government reorganization measures, will face Albert Hilliard and State Health Officer John E. Worden, both of whom have avowed their support of the New Deal and Roosevelt.

Observers predicted Hilliard would win no more than three of the state's 17 counties, and that Worden would draw an even smaller vote. Former Senator Tasker L. Oddie is unopposed for the Republican senatorial nomination.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 6—Replying to campaign charges by Wilbur H. Towle, former chief of State police, Gov. Lewis O. Barrows in a speech here denied he had ousted Towle after the latter had told him a "break" was expected in the $30,000 Auburn motor vehicle registry theft last February.

Lewis Labor Foe, Holt Tells Miners

HARRISBURG, Ill., Sept. 6 (INS)—John L. Lewis is the "greatest enemy labor has in America," Senator Rush D. Holt of West Virginia told a crowd of 6000 union miners in an address here.

"Unite under the banner of the A. F. of L. and defeat this man who is doing more damage to labor than all the industrialists combined," he advised.

Tests Show Twins Alike In Emotional Reactions

By G. B. LAL

(International News Service Science Editor)

(Copyright 1938)

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (INS)—Twins are alike not only in looks but also in emotional reactions, Dr. Harold D. Carter of the University of California reported in a scientific paper received today.

A total of one hundred twins were examined.

The psychological examination given them is known as the "free association test." In it the subject is asked to reply by the first word that comes into the mind, without any thinking at all, to test words.

Among Dr. Carter's fifty pairs of twins, 26 pairs were identical and 24 pairs were fraternal twins.

In order to make sure that the identical twins were really such, elaborate X-ray and other examinations, including fingerprint recording, were made.

The test consisted of presentation of 24 words to each boy and girl. In reply to each word, the twin responded with any word that came into mind without hesitation or deliberation.

Eight of the words were pleasant, for example, "mother, father, candy, movie, love, dance;" eight were unpleasant, "fight, pimple, bleed, fear, cheat etc."

The remaining eight words were of indifferent emotional significance, such as "pencil, glass" and the like.

The important part of the test was the exact amount of time taken by the boy or girl in responding to each word.

According to the psychological theory of the "free association test," one takes longer when responding to a word that disturbs the emotions.

375 Firms Join 'Job-Buy' Drive

MORE sales mean MORE jobs!

That call swept Greater Boston today as 375 business firms signed an agreement with the Boston Chamber of Commerce to create more work and greater prosperity by increasing sales of merchandise.

The Chamber of Commerce, speaking through E. C. Johnson, chairman of the Boston Sales crusade committee, announced 50,000 "Sales Means Jobs" buttons had been distributed shortly before the drive opened today.

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper sent a message to Johnson saying:

SPECIAL MEETINGS HELD

"Cooperative approach to the problem of wider distribution of goods will contribute to the economic progres of asll concerned. The more goods consumed now the greater will be the demand on wholesalers and manufacturers, who will then contribute to the purchasing power."

Of the 375 companies, all representing major lines of business and industry, hundreds will enroll thousands of salesmen to carry out the plan.

Oliver M. Drummond, president of the Advertising Club of Boston, wrote to Johnson:

"On behalf of the Advertising Club of Boston I wish to extend congratulations to you and your committee for brinking the National Sales Crusade to Boston.

"If the buying public could only realize the far-reachi effect of the purchase of any single item of merchandise and the number of hands that are employed to produce them they would readily comprehend the truth of your slogan, 'Sales Mean Jobs'."

PURCHASES MEANS SALES

Endorsing the plan warmly, and promising full support, were E. D. Warner, president of Hovey's; Edward Presbrey, president of Kennedy's, Inc.; David Lilienthal, vice-president of I. J. Fox, Inc.; S. S. Conrad, president of Conrad and Co., and Eliot Wardeworth, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, who added:

"Purchases mean sales. Sales make business and create jobs. Jobs make purchasers. This is the cycle which will bring permanent improvement."

With the huge sales drive comes smart styles and clothes to attract the Boston consumer.

The drive will continue with the Boston American-Record "Back Home to Buy" movement.

MANY BARGAINS LISTED

For the college girl there is the dirndl style, the new basque waist and high shoulders. The business woman will have wide choice. Perhaps it will be a dress of corded rayon crepe in black, navy or brown. Perhaps it will be in shimmering black satin.

Hundreds of bargains are to be listed in all types of mens and women's apparel.

Tomorrow stickers for automobiles, banners for the streets, and wide advertising will aid the "Sales Mean Jobs" movement to remain under way until the end of this month.

Malden Crash Hurts Three

Police said one car was operated by Richard DeMusio, 38, of Lawrence road, Medford; the other by Noward F. Langdon, 56, of Kittery, Me.

Both men and Mrs. Estelle M. Langdon were taken to Malden Hospital.

All had severe lacerations and bruises and possible internal injuries.

Mrs. Langdon's face was gashed and several of her teeth were knocked out.

SHE CAN TAKE IT AT 95

NEW FREEDOM, Pa., Sept. 6 (AP)—Mrs. Mary King, 95, cooked for union soldiers before Gettysburg. She still can "take it." She broke her arm and when ladies called to comfort her, Mrs. King had gone for an auto ride.

Hull Seeking Quota Basis for German Jews

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull is seeking through the Permanent Refugee Committee set up in London, to induce Chancellor Hitler to permit Jews to leave Germany on a non-racial, regular quota basis.

German Jews are now coming to the United States at the rate of nearly 20% a year, but half their emigration to most other countries has been completely ruled.

Reports issued by the London committee have described the present treatment, expulsion and emigration of Jews as chaotic.

Specifically they want Hitler to refrain from thrusting some thousands of Jews upon the world one month and a swarm of a few to go out another month.

At the same time they want Hitler to liberalize his treatment of emigrating Jews by permitting them to take more of their property with them. They are now limited to a fraction of their holdings.

The committee representatives, Myron C. Taylor, formerly head of the United States Steel Corporation, the American who about two days ago got Hitler into a promise for Jews with free trade [illegible]

Throngs Mourn At Cardinal Hayes' Bier

NEW YORK, Sept 6 (AP)—Persons from all walks of life and of all religious beliefs today paid respect to the late Patrick Cardinal Hayes, whose body lay in state in the cardinalate in the rear of St. Patrick's cathedral.

The doors of the residence were thrown open at 9:45 a m and with picked city police standing at attention at each corner of the catafalque, mourners began a steady march, stopping briefly at the coffin to make the sign of the cross, or in other ways to lender their respect for the "Cardinal of Charity."

MOURNERS ADMITTED

In the first group admitted were detectives and policemen who for the next three days will be on steadily on duty at the residence and cathedral.

Mourners, many of whom had waited on Madison Avenue for several hours, were admitted [illegible]

As the procession passed the bier of the cardinal, who died at his summer home near Montauk Sunday, the entire block around St. Patrick's Cathedral and the cardinalate was patrolled by police men.

MUNDELEIN TO PRESIDE

Monsignor Michael J Lavelle rector of the cathedral issued a brief verbal message urging the public to attend the masses to be held tomorrow and Thursday, pointing out that the cathedral will be crowded to capacity during the solemn pontifical mass Friday.

Msgr Lavelle also announced that George Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago will preside at the funeral mass at 11 o'clock Friday. Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter of New Orleans will preach the sermon.

3 Nations Join Search for Girl

The police of three countries today joined in search for Shirley Smith, 17, Winchester high school girl, mysteriously missing from her home more than a week.

Declaring he was working on "new and startling information," Police Chief William Rogers, Winchester, asked the border patrols of both Mexico and Canada to watch for the girl.

Shirley's locked diary, left behind, was broken open in search of a clue, but Chief Rogers said it supplied no information. She drew $50 from her bank account the day before her disappearance, Rogers declared.

The missing girl is a daughter of C. Harold Smith, Winchester auto dealer. The family is reported to have opposed Shirley's ambition to take up aviation as a career.

Sister Admits Dixie Confab

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP)—James J. Hines' counsel brought out today in his conspiracy trial that Mrs. Rose Wendroff, a star state witness, had talked only two weeks ago with her rackets-lawyer brother, J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, who has turned state's evidence against the Tammany leader.

In testimony made by Mrs. Wendroff under the cross-examination of Hines' chief lawyer, Lloyd Paul Stryker, the defense sought to suggest that Davis might have coached his sister to embellish his earlier testimony against the accused politician.

Davis is expected to be called as co-defendant for the Dutch Street policy banker when [illegible] official protection and the Hines [illegible] begin presentation of their case.

Mrs. Wendroff [illegible] her brother [illegible] Davis [illegible] Stryker asked her:

"During this time when you were his affectionate sister and he was your loving brother you do not mean to convey, do you, that your topics of conversation during business hours were confined to your respective states of health?"

"No," said the witness, "they were not."

KNEW LITTLE OF CASES

She said that she had a talk [illegible] Davis [illegible] Hines [illegible] Stryker asked the witness if Davis had told her about the Hines case.

"I wouldn't know," she responded—a phrase she frequently used to Stryker's manifest exasperation.

BANK NEARBY

Stryker brought out that [illegible] Davis [illegible] Mrs. Wendroff drove [illegible] bank [illegible] to get the cash in a brief case.

Stryker added that [illegible] she had seen and talked with her brother Dixie two weeks ago at the home of her mother, at which previously she had seen [illegible] Combs.

Cardinal Eulogized at Hines Trial

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—Before Mrs. Rose Wendroff, Dixie Davis' sister, took the witness stand at the James J. Hines trial, a eulogy of the late Patrick Cardinal Hayes was delivered by Lloyd Stryker, Hines' counsel. Deputy Attorney Thomas E. Dewey likewise praised the Cardinal, as did Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora.

For details read Edwin C. Hill, "Human Side of the News," on Page 24.

Spy System Urged for U.S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6 (INS)—Nationwide spying activities of foreign agents have prompted high government officials to urge President Roosevelt to launch a counter-espionage system, with funds to be provided by the next Congress, informed sources revealed today.

This disclosure was made as secretary of State Hull spent Labor Day putting the finishing touches to regulations to be issued tomorrow requiring all agents of foreign governments and societies to register with the department.

The regulations are being issued under the McCormack act, which goes into effect Thursday. It was approved by President Roosevelt on June 8 but its effective date was delayed 90 days by Congress to give the state department sufficient time in which to formulate enforcement regulations.

Sponsored by Representative [illegible] of Massachusetts, the act was passed by the house of representatives after it was learned that Nazi Communist Fifth Column agents were attempting to break down the American form of government.

Violation of the new law will be punishable by [illegible] imprisonment and a $5,000 fine. Even though all agents and propagandists register, they will be subject to the penalty [illegible]

Therefore Germany will not suffer a food shortage for years. We also shall accumulate sufficient food reserves for any emergency.

"Secondly, Germany owes its strength to the amazing success of the four-year plan, which will enable Germany to carry on without pause.

"The principle of German trade has been built up in such a manner to enable this country to be independent at any time of other nations. We have succeeded. The idea that Germany could again be blockaded may be buried right now as a product of insufficient wisdom.

"Our economic activities will always be guided by this resolution. National security first. Only then will German defense forces be in a position to protect at any and all times the freedom and interests of the Reich."

[illegible]

"I have no intention of concluding new pacts," his proclamation stated.

"I step before you not with a new pact, but with seven new German provinces from my own country (Austria)."

The proclamation stated that Germany has been cleared of parasites and is now begun the struggle against the international lesser enemy, the greatest enemy threatening to destroy civilization.

Our fotog went out on the assignment to get some typical school-bound youngsters . . . and these three pictures tell the story as his camera saw it. SALES MEAN JOBS

The Editor Says:

– Greater Boston's campaign [illegible] "SALES MEAN JOBS" [illegible] New England.

Our merchants, businessmen and industrialists, working in close [illegible] Chamber of Commerce, are offering to you the best products at the MOST INVITING prices.

They are purposely and deliberately MAKING IT ATTRACTIVE for thousands who have neglected shopping during the past years to buy – and TO BUY NOW.

A study of the numerous advertisements of the present day will be convincing proof that during this month MORE furniture, MORE clothing and MORE of everything all individuals, families and households need and ought to have can be purchased for LESS MONEY.

But this is only half of the campaign. There is ANOTHER HALF, an important half. It has to do with those thousands of our people who want jobs, better living conditions and security.

For [illegible] MORE BUYING means MORE JOBS. When [illegible] start to hum at a quicker pace, the number of men and women [illegible] to be employed increases.

When [illegible] we have to increase the number of [illegible] to supply the demand.

[illegible] factories and factories [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] the wheels of industry [illegible] the [illegible] factories [illegible] SALES MEAN JOBS.

PATRICK CARDINAL HAYES was one of the [illegible] As Cardinal Archbishop of New York, he was known [illegible] for his [illegible] and for his saintly [illegible] and patriotism.

The sermons and writings of Cardinal Hayes ought to be preserved and read by all Americans. Millions would find therein a BEACON OF TRUTH in the darkness of this troubled age.

POOR ARLINGTON! The town has our sympathy, for we know with what pride it boasted of its record of 349 days WITHOUT a serious automobile accident.

The perfect record is no more. A Massachusetts avenue man, struck on the highway near his home, died a few hours later at a hospital.

But—and we are sure of this—Arlington will not grow lax in her enforcement of safety laws. Arlington officials have proven themselves too conscientious to tolerate carelessness.

"BUY AMERICAN ANTHRACITE" is the sensible and patriotic slogan of the City Fuel Company, the Staples Coal Company and other dealers selling Glen Burn and Glen Lyon coals.

The slogan is sensible because American coal is the world's best and that means the MOST heat for the LEAST money.

It is patriotic because the money spent for these fuels is money that will go into the pockets of American workingmen.

As Mr. Charles E. O'Donnell, president of the Union Label Section of the Boston Central Labor Union, wisely says:

"It is high time that the New England public learned the facts about the foreign coal situation in this section and the truth behind the slogan, 'When You Buy American Anthracite You Protect American Labor.'"

YOU BOAST about your RIGHTS . . . you'll see red if anyone challenged your AMERICAN FREEDOM. But do you know what your "RIGHTS" are? Do you know how far your "FREEDOM" extends or what it costs?

There are some extremely personal and possibly embarrassing questions that HUGH HARRIS WALTERS, loyal young American resident of HOUSTON, TEXAS, thinks it time you faced. Down in your heart, are you glad you were born in America? Why?

Then Mr. Walters says:

"The future is equally in the young people of this country today as it was in the days when they were to be so vitally affected by the social and economic changes now taking place in this country and throughout the world today. Changes resulting largely from our present national and international policies.

"At a recent party primaries I was surprised to discover how little a number of the young people were really unfamiliar with the various candidates, their platforms and political affiliations.

"If our young people could only realize that the survival of the democracy depends to a great extent upon their personal interest and participation in politics they'd certainly change their present attitude!"

"I will be 19 years old this soon. When I was smaller, grown people were always saying, 'You mustn't do this and you must do that if you wish to grow up to be a man.'

"From that I naturally concluded that grown men were wonderful beings who were always polite, considerate, honest, intelligent and reasonable in their dealings with each other. BUT THE LONGER I LIVE THE MORE I REALIZE THAT NOT ONLY HAVE ADULTS EVERY WEAKNESS CHILDREN HAVE, BUT THAT THESE WEAKNESSES ARE INTENSIFIED AND UNCONTROLLED."

THE LAMBETH WALK comes to Boston! At the Ritz Roof, to music by Vincent Lopez and his orchestra, Bostonians try the intricate steps of this London mixture of square dance and strutting.

Girl About Town

by Marjorie McBride

WITH the opening of schools in Boston this week, one naturally thinks of thousands of children packing away faded bathing suits and reluctantly dragging books out of the attic.

There is a vast army of pupils who go to school every fall without any books at all. They are the 100,000 juveniles and adults who keep 500 Boston dancing teachers busy throughout the winter.

It is estimated that there will be 2000 "taking lessons" every weekday night in the 60 schools of the dance in the greater city.

In view of the increasing popularity of dancing, the column interviewed Miss Gertrude Dolan, whose dance studios in Roxbury annually enroll more than 500 potential ballroom belles and stage stars.

Miss Dolan thinks that the waltz will again be popular with intricate variations. A novelty that is likely to be worked in from time to time is the LAMBETH WALK, a cross between a square dance and strutting. It has just been introduced in New York.

For the stage Miss Dolan finds that tap dancing is the most easily learned. Ballet and acrobatic comedy follow, in that order. Children are the most conscious and learn more quickly than adults.

THE MASSACHUSETTS Development and Industrial Board is posing a question to beach hotels for future reference. They'd like to learn if resorts find it affects their business to ban bathers without the upper part of their suits on.

Tsingtao China is interested, too.

It seems that Cap Doherty of the board recently received a letter from a young Chinaman in Tsingtao. He said he had "planned to come here for his vacation, but when he heard he couldn't swim without a full suit, he decided to stay where he was."

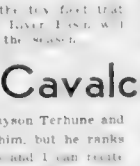
New York Cavalcade

by Louis Sobol

I HAVE NEVER met Albert Payson Terhune and perhaps I shall never meet him, but he ranks high among my favorite authors and I can recite some of his stories as if I had read them yesterday.

In fact, it was from a Terhune story that I learned for the first time that the ferocious looking bull-dog is no great shakes of a fighter except when his powerful jaws manage to get a grip and, of course, I got to know almost everything there was to know about collies—for collies are Terhune's pets.



Louis Sobol

RECENTLY, one of the better known weeklies devoted space to the accidental killing of one of Terhune's collies by a tourist and the story did not, for some reason, give the author any the best of it.

Sunnybank Jean was Terhune's pride—and at the time of the accident, she was grieving over the loss of one of her puppies. She was returning from her daily pilgrimage to its grave where she would lie for an hour or so every day in silent mourning.

As I have heard the story, the car, laden with sightseers, had crashed the gates of the lodge on the Terhune estate and journeyed down the drive. The tourist insisted the dog had deliberately committed suicide by flinging itself under the wheels.

There was some furore in the press thereafter, when Terhune had the party haled to court and pressed charges, but I don't recall that anything was ever said of his action in having the damages reduced from $500 to $100—and donating the sum to two of his charities.

A MUTUAL FRIEND tells me the author is still mourning the death of Sunnybank Jean who was the object of his affection.

It is Terhune's belief, I am told, that Jean just back from the grave of her puppy leaving the car on the driveway had run to her accustomed post near the veranda with her paw out stretched in welcome.

THERE has been some talk that the Terhunes keep themselves aloof and that the author has snubbed admirers coming to pay him their respects.

This I do not believe to be the truth, for mutual friends tell me that though he must have much of his time to himself in order to write he sets aside many hours during the week when he is "at home" to visitors and whenever any of his readers are in the Pompton Lakes section and wish to call upon him, they need only telephone and the appointment will be made.

IF NO ONE else will grip your hand firmly and smile with warmth that appears to come from the heart travel out to the Riviera and meet my very good friend Charles Weeghman.

Once he was a millionaire. Today, he earns a living as "greeter" and manager at the Jersey night spot. He was one of three boys who left Richmond, Indiana, together before the turn of the century. Each went to success in his own way—and became millionaires. The other two were Daniel Reed and William Leeds, Sr.

JOHNSON FOR LIEUT. GOVERNOR

Boston After Dark

BY GEORGE HOLLAND

Exclusive:

There is blood on the Boston moon again . . . In the dim past, this column once suggested that trouble loomed for the gendarmes . . . Homicide happened . . . At least twenty unreported stickups or "heists" are going to be avenged the hard way . . . Shortly.

GEORGE HOLLAND

From that to this . . . A bit of romance . . . Elbie Fletcher, the Bees' first-baseman, is going to have a "day" at National League Field, but the fans can be more enthusiastic than if they hadn't read this . . . Elbie is going to wed Miss Martha Hanson of Milton a day or two after the season ends . . . They have known each other since they were eight years old . . . Nice?

Once Over Lightly:

Mickey Cochrane is out of baseball for life . . . The Bridgewater boy has accepted a position with Henry Ford in a sales capacity and will go to work for his new boss on or about January 1.

Walter O'Hara, deposed boss of Narragansett, will be back in the racing game but not in Kansas City, Texas or other remote spots . . . He will bob up in New Jersey, if the racing game is legalized on the next ballot . . . Walter has the rail in the running for the concession, and in Newark, which is only an hour and a half from Boston by air—if you care . . . The O'Hara "connection" is Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City.

Incidentally, Mr. O'Hara would have attended the races at Cranston yesterday, but new advisers (whom he trusts) dissuaded him . . .

In Europe . . . [illegible] . . . and that Pelgroso 2nd, a stake horse, was stricken with the deadly ailment which has been claiming horses at the Empire City track. The Chilean horse died early in the morning . . . Incidentally, it was Pelgroso 2nd which was insured for $10,000 a few days before the disease, equine encephalomyelitis" set in (the long word means "sleeping sickness") . . . You may have read the story in yesterday's American.

Only six of the 1200 odd horses quartered at the Pawtucket stables succumbed to the malady . . . But there will be no quarantine of Narragansett horses before the Rockingham meeting unless there is indication that the disease will spread . . .

Eddie Mahan, greatest of Harvard's football greats, was in Boston for the holidays . . . Eddie and the McLaughlin brothers held a fanning bee at Jimmy O'Keefe's . . . Tom was a Yale star and "Chick" comes down in Harvard tradition as the best Crimson pitcher . . .

Months ago the column reported that Legion Commander Dan Doherty of Woburn was in line for an important post in Attorney General Paul A. Dever's office . . . Paul made a cagey denial . . . Watch for it to happen between September 20 and the November political finals . . .

Chatter:

Helen Morgan will probably come to the Mayfair for a week beginning Monday, September 21 . . . Sheila Barrett was booked, but Sheila can employ herself profitably without paying trainfare and tips to Boston that week in New York . . . So Sheila will open September 28 at the Mayfair, thanks to Benny Ginsburg's consideration. Because her contract was signed . . .

It's [illegible] the facts about the much rumored refurbishing of the Ritz-Carlton Roof . . . The job—the way Ed Wynn wants it done—will cost more than $100,000 . . . Since the Mansfield administration a permit is required . . . The roof has been used at City Hall . . . The permit for the same was not [illegible]

Your correspondent thinks that there will be no glass rolling-roof at the Ritz-Carlton Roof this season or next . . .

Myopia Host To Horse Fans

By BETTY ALDEN

MR. AND MRS. JOHN G. [illegible] Public knows [illegible] and care less as long as the family coupe continues to [illegible] . . . And of all the sports you could mention they probably know the least about the fine points of a horse show . . . Yet the rustic fence around the show ring on the Myopia Scoring Field in Hamilton was lined three and four deep with standees yesterday afternoon . . . the tops of majestic autumn hills and tally-hos were crowded with spectators, and the parking facilities of the wide acreage were almost exhausted . . . The explanation of this sudden popularity of equine jumping and judging for form and conformation is quite simple . . . The committee for the annual Myopia Hunt Club's Labor Day show suspended the usual admission fee and let everyone in free . . . Several thousand people needed the horse show offered a pleasant way to spend an afternoon in the sunshine . . .

Most of the casual spectators were more interested in the riders than the horses and seemed to enjoy walking about the grounds and in the paddock rubbing elbows with members of the North Shore's famous horsey set . . . "That's Bayard Tuckerman" or "That's Anne Ayer" or "That's somebody else," some knowing individual would point out as a rider started out on the course and a steady murmur of voices would carry the news all the way around the ring . . .

Bayard Tuckerman was recognized and pointed out most frequently for he is a polo man as well as a horseman . . . Teamed with his daughter Tilly he beat the horses of Eleo Sears, Gordon Prince, Sally Sears, George Cormen's, and many other well known North Shoremen's team the Willowbank trophy, donated by Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Chestnut and named for their estate on Beverly . . .

Mrs. Gardiner Esse another famous horsewoman had a busy day as judge, and instead of wearing her customary side saddle riding skirt and bowler, was dressed in the outstanding costume of the day . . . Over a white linen dress she had a flax blue linen redingote and a large white hat with an effective band of striped taffeta combining every color of the rainbow . . .

• • •

All North Shore Set Attends

DICK PRESTON acted as announcer, calling out the winners through a loud speaker, and later joined his fiancee and sisters, friends to proceed to the polo field where several spirited contests wound up the afternoon's activities . . . Dick Pentecost sat at the judge's stand beside his attractive fiancee, Jean Bowman who drew charcoal sketches of practically every horse in the show . . . "C. G." Page came a cropper on his last jump but that didn't prevent him from playing in the polo game . . . Eleo Sears absorbed interest looking over her horses in the paddock and watching their performance from the top of a tally-ho . . . and then after a friendly cup with Mrs. Charles F. Ayer, hurried home for a couple of sets of tennis before dark . . . Chatting and socializing from atop one tally-ho were Mrs. John Tuckerman, Ellen Mooney, George and Tim Clark, Camilla Warren, Mrs. Harold Coolidge, and others who climbed aboard from time to time . . .

The latest rage among the debs seems to be emulating Whitney Eustis's perfect boy . . . for we saw Betsy Chadwick, Prudence Wellman, Jessica Stevens and several others, dangling their hats, and legs over the side of a beach wagon as they watched the proceedings . . . Rose Stanwell and Joe Richardson candid camera fans found many willing subjects for their picture taking activities . . . and one of Joe's shots will record the intent expressions of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Pickman, Jr., Nancy Cochrane, Holly Phelps, Faith Kidder and Margie McKean, as they watched the show from the top of a car . . .

Mrs. Barbara Wendell Seigle joined Mrs. Joe Woods and the latter's youngsters to watch the proceedings, and nearby were Mrs. Edward Bagelow with her daughter, Olivia Ames, Mrs. F. Wadsworth Bass, Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Cave, Louise Barbour, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Gay Bartlett, Evelyn Lilly,

Here's still another pickle recipe that is on the order of chutney. Several requests have been received for India Chutney. The other recipe which [illegible] pay is made in India and [illegible] Handful Rice. Most recipes suggest using peaches instead. Try this recipe and guess those [illegible] for that type of fruit.

OLD FASHIONED FRUIT PICKLE

Cut all ingredients called for [illegible] finely.

30 peaches	2 hot peppers
6 pears	4 lb. Sugar
4 ripe plums	4 tablespoons salt
2 cups vinegar	1 ounce mixed spice
1 cup [illegible]	1 ounce cassia bud
2 small red peppers	[illegible]
2 sweet red peppers	[illegible]

If a picnic hot with pepper is desired, merely prick the hot red peppers and do not cut otherwise. It is best to remove the seeds from them. Vary the amount of sugar to suit the taste of your family. And don't forget to place the pickling spice in a small cheese cloth bag to be removed at the end of the cooking period.

Mix all ingredients together and cook until thick, which will require about two hours.

Here's Proof That Sentiment Still Abounds

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The sale of Fanny Read's effects recently proves that sentiment has not wholly vanished from a cynical world.

Everything that the old recluse touched, in her 70 years of mourning for her lost love, sold at from five to ten times its actual value. More than two thousand strangers gathered at her old home in Hancock, N. Y., and outbid each other for sentimental souvenirs.

Probably some of the bidders had been through the divorce mill a couple of times; some, perhaps, were in arrears for alimony; others might have had sordid pasts. But all of them were eager to possess something that in their imagination real love had hallowed.

You may recall the name of Fanny Read, for she was the heroine of a good many newspaper feature stories published from time to time. Briefly, her romance centered about Lieutenant John Bellows, of the 101st New York regiment, when it was in camp near Hancock in 1862. Fanny's father, Riley Read, kept an inn, a 44-room structure.

The inn was frequented by young officers, among them Lieutenant Bellows, who fell in love with Fanny, "sweet and twenty." They plighted their vows—nothing but death should ever part them. In their case, the troth was real. But Riley Read was the stern father of tradition, in addition to which he was deeply suspicious of army officers, considering them a philandering lot.

When he saw how things were going with his daughter and the handsome young lieutenant, he ordered the officer out of the house, telling him never to return.

Fanny took to her room and vowed she'd never leave it until Lieutenant Bellows returned to claim her. Shortly afterwards, the young officer was sent to the front, and never came back; presumably, he was killed. The neighbors thought Fanny would relent and marry someone who would make her forget the soldier boy, but she never forgot.

For 70 years she remained a recluse. After her father's death the old inn at which Horace Greeley had been a guest and Jay Gould stopped on their swings up and down Eastern routes used to come to paint its new glass windows was closed. But Fanny stayed on with her memories, hoping that some day John Bellows might come back to her. Death put a stop to her wait.

And so a few days ago they auctioned off her things. Cars began arriving at the house parking a dozen or more stories around the streets. Dealers flocked hoping for pieces of antiques. But there was nothing of commercial value. Only things this woman had touched in the 70 years of her retirement from the world were cried out by the auctioneer.

A piano on whose yellowed keys the tumbling fingers of Fanny Read played the songs of the period to Lieut. Bellows, was bought by a nephew, Charles Read, for $300. There was a great pile of sheet music on top — stirring marches of Civil War days, sentimental songs about soldiers who never returned —which went with the piano. But Fanny had never opened their yellow pages after her lover went away.

A doll she had loved as a child sold for $18—a set of pewter dishes that served the doll went for $4.75. Several pairs of Fanny's little shoes, incredibly small—size two, A width—went for $2.45 a pair. A surveyor's map, made by Jay Gould, was sold for $7.50. Even old buttons sold for $1.75. "All souvenirs of love," said a cynical girl lighting a cigarette. She had paid token.

CHAPTER 17

There were many times in the six weeks' trip on that 4200-ton Japanese freighter that I wished myself on some other ship, but never back in Paris.

That was because my heart, just recently come of age, was broken. Because that magic packet of letters given me by Don in the murky gray of the Gare de Lyons turned out to be so many passports to disillusionment.

It is a pity when we are 20, that we can't also be 30, with its mellowness and comprehension of things unspoken, unsaid.

It is a pity youth has to learn so hard and take so long to live it. But the pity is less for youth, which can take it, than for those older who get hurt by youth's blatant ignorance.

I wasn't 30 and I wasn't mellow. I was young and brash and full of my own importance eaten up with blind pride that made me unable to see that I had got this far successfully, more through dumb luck and a natural gift for making friends and an exuberant personality bought to bear on a fair share of the natural good looks of youth.

I had earned none of these attributes myself then were mine by inheritance only. Yet I took full credit for them to myself.

That pride made me certain the world was not modern art unless it was a dozen on the first show, swooning in the ecstatic state of adulation, approval and flattery.

That same pride kept me to my given word not to open any of the letters except in their natural order—the first on leaving Marseilles, the second just before arriving at Port Said, the third on getting at Aden. So each was a new adventure and wondering the next thing, and the hard I first hoped Don would father.

That there could be a letter on that he couldn't have written me before, I had got used to. It was to me a plan that would enable me to dramatize myself to my own past, the right hand of [illegible] face. I [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] rowed money to buy [illegible].

NO WORD OF LOVE.

But he was [illegible]. I guessed he was [illegible]. He had liked me just enough to know the romantic loneliness of some women and the generosity of most young men.

Not so long however that he couldn't draw a long bow once more and bet on me and the depth of the affection I believed I had for him: a bet that it would survive hourly protestations of affection, understand things that were not said, comprehend that he was sending me into a strange world to prove myself as much as my love for him.

A bet, in short, that youthful impatience could stand the test of time.

I thought with real literalness only that I had guessed wrong, that it had been short while it lasted, but that he was afraid to change his life and take on the responsibilities of marriage. And so, each letter, as I tore it open eagerly in one lovely port after another, outraged me, wounded me, astonished me, finally, by any fear of thinking about him and me at all.

For they were just travel letters, beautiful, essays designed to sharpen my appreciation and crystallize my enjoyment of new sights, pieces of emotionless [illegible] and sounds. They were [illegible].

What Don didn't know was that, except for those letters, he was one to me through whom he had hoped I would could have been won. But the time for [illegible] the straining for a final [illegible], the things that could never have been done, that change our destinies, I read into those letters doubt and fear rather than the man's strong and courage. And so, over Mediterranean, my pride directed me toward a new course from which I did not swerve.

There was panacea for a heart aplenty on that voyage. It was natural not romantic, however. For one thing this was my first open water to talk long and intelligently with Japanese aristocrats, businessmen and students, to discover essential differences between Occidental and Oriental thought and philosophy.

The farther East we sailed the better able I was to empathize and from a mood of self-pity was able to my surroundings and [illegible] hand to one of the most interesting.

A WORLD APART

Our whole company was a small one. Peggy and I were the only Americans. The other passengers were South Indian and Singhalese, single men and [illegible] returning to the Orient from [illegible] leave, young bride to be, a widow and a spinster.

The widow was going back to Japan because after 20 years [illegible] it was so much more [illegible] than the Scotch [illegible] had been. The spinster [illegible] with tweeds, brogues [illegible] hunting [illegible] had [illegible] her [illegible] the Malay jungle [illegible] pure hoping for adventure and romance.

She was our cabin mate. A fixture from prim [illegible] with [illegible] English way she [illegible] the amenities with [illegible] appeared always [illegible] for conversation [illegible] we always put out [illegible] after we undressed, [illegible] her procedure.

But ships, it has been said in truth, are little worlds; rather, each is a microcosm of a world. A handful of persons unable to get away from each other, on a fragile man-made ship at the mercy of any whim of the elements, are bound together in a kind of kinship that breaks down reserve.

Miss M—'s reserve did not break until Port Said.

We had sailed between Asia Minor and the African mainland, and on a warm and sultry Christmas Eve, with a fond breze carrying strange odors to us in fitful gusts, we dropped anchor inside the breakwater, and saw the lights of Port Said off starboard.

READING THE FUTURE

Against the sudden silence of the engines there arose a hubbub and a clatter, and brown men and black swarmed over the sides from small boats. They had everything in the world to sell, and they set up colorful shops on deck. But the old hands warned us. They were fakers, most of them. Wait until you go ashore in the morning, they said.

One tall Egyptian [illegible] eyes glowing like two [illegible] in a dark room followed me about until exasperated I [illegible] to stop.

"But only to read your hand, mam'selle," he explained in [illegible] out further advanced my hand and began studying my palm.

This was the beginning of wisdom for me; my first gleam of understanding of the strange psychic powers that Orientals possess in larger measure than their white brethren. I laughed then, true enough, but I remembered what he said when his prophecies—cheaply bought for a few francs—came true a few months later.

But at the time I was briefly [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Business Quiz To End 'Bogies'

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Economic Commentator

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (INS)—If the forthcoming monopoly inquisition at Washington is scientifically conducted, it ought to have real educational value.

It should dispel bogey men as well as reveal evils.

A fair representation of the facts should disclose that there is vastly less monopoly in this country than in other industrial nations, which legalize "cartels" or combinations among competitors.

Specifically, much of the wrath against "monopoly" is predicated on the ever-existing under-consumption theory which assumes that business executives, in their own self-interest, attempt to get maximum profits through keeping prices up and wages down.

This theory ignores the lesson which Henry Ford taught American industrialists, namely, that great success is to be attained through raising wages, shortening hours, lowering prices and improving quality.

It takes [illegible] practice and [illegible] the economics of [illegible] education to acknowledge [illegible]

The fact is that profits are no [illegible] production facilities [illegible] paying lower and lower wages.

It is [illegible] pay and [illegible] the utilities.

An [illegible] with [illegible] trained economists [illegible] and [illegible] over paying [illegible] wages.

3—It is assumed that business leaders deliberately keep wages at low levels. This argument disregards the limitations of wages set by the value of the products produced and the upward pressure on wages resulting from competition for productive workers.

4—It assumes that all profits are invested in new production equipment. In the case of millions of security holders and small business men this is not the fact. The recipients use their profits for current purchases.

4—The key assumption is that savings used for investment do not become a part of current purchasing power. The fact is that savings are spent.

Fish Raps Hull As Free Trader

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6 (INS)—Rep. Hamilton Fish (R) of New York, 18 years a member of the House foreign affairs committee, today accused Secretary of State Hull of "talking through his hat" in declarations the reciprocal trade treaties will make for world peace.

Taking issue with Hull's reply to a letter from Republican National Chairman John Hamilton, in which the secretary reiterated that trade pacts will do more than any other factor in averting war, Fish declared:

"Secretary Hull has had a free trade obsession for 30 years, and fails to realize American labor cannot compete with Japanese labor paid 20 cents a day or European labor paid less than a dollar."

'Peace' News Sends London Market Up

LONDON, Sept. 6 (INS)—The London stock market spurted today as Adolf Hitler's speech at Nuremberg and developments in Prague combined to ease the Central European crisis.

Sterling improved, the dollar being quoted at $4.83 to the pound.

Good News

NEW YORK, Sept 6—Revenues of the transit industry for the week ending August 27 lifted the Transit Journal's indicator to 86.57. This compares with the previous week's figure of 84.59. The figure is the best reached since January and was aided by initial gains by a number of companies that have steadily lagged behind.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—The Associated Press index of industrial activity advanced in August for the third consecutive month. It reached the best level since last November and was 12 per cent higher than last July. Substantial gains were recorded by electric power production, steel mill activity, residential building and cotton manufacturing.

Industrial and trade reports clearly indicate the recovery movement is gaining both in breadth and momentum, says the United Business Service in its latest weekly report. Activity is now about 10 per cent above the mid-June low point, and this advance has been achieved during a period when the normal trend is downward.

Much of the business improvement is being credited to the government spend-lend program. From a psychological standpoint, this is undoubtedly a factor. Actually, government spending has as yet increased but little, and it will be late fall before the program really gets under way.

An improved near-term outlook characterizes the industrial machinery and machine tool industry according to Poor's Stock Reports. Profits for the coming months are expected to make highly favorable comparisons with results registered during the earlier months of 1938.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6—Merchandisers are of the opinion that department store sales over the next 60 days should about equal those of the corresponding period of a year ago and that November and December should see a larger volume than prevailed at the 1937 year-end. An over-all gain of 5 per cent for the final four months is now generally anticipated.

LOWELL, Sept. 6—Representatives of workers and plant officials of Suffolk Knitting Co. have signed a contract to insure the operation of the concern.

Leather trade authorities are estimating total consumption of leather during the remainder of the year may show an increase of from 20 per cent to 25 per cent over 1937.

Farm Credit Head To Resign Post

WASHINGTON, Sept 6 (INS)—Governor William I. Myers of the Farm Credit Association today prepared to send his resignation to President Roosevelt, effective September 15.

Dr. Myers recently was elected dean of agriculture at Cornell University, and is preparing to leave late in the month to take over his new duties.

Sterling Cuts Maximum Loss

LONDON, Sept. 6 (AP)—Support by the stabilization control fund helped along by better news from Paris, brought a recovery in the pound sterling against the dollar today.

The dollar gradually declined from the day's high of $4.85¼ in terms of sterling to $4.84 resulting, unofficially, to close at $4.82⅝.

The stock exchange likewise recovered most of the initial declines and numerous issues finished with gains, including gold shares and Consolidated issues.

Metal Price Stability Is Forecast

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
(Financial Editor)

The behavior of metal prices in the weeks to come will have much to do with the attitude of business and trade forecasters, in our opinion. As copper, lead and zinc go, so will industry, to the extent of recovery due, as the fall and winter.

It is therefore apropos that we consider the price situation as it pertains to the immediate future.

Consumers largely covered their expected fall needs last June and July and recently purchasing has been at low ebb. Thus the demand factor will exert little influence until present stocks speeds up buying expectations.

On the other the supply side we find producers have dispersed of recent tonnage to obviate price cutting ever, though production is [illegible]

All told reordering plus a moderate amount of new business should be enough to promote a stable price structure. And, this is what forecasters will watch most carefully if early summer expectations of consumptive needs prove low, higher prices will be promoted.

Higher metal prices in the weeks to come will point to better than anticipated business conditions. With the reverse true of a decline.

• • •

MARKET FORECASTING

As the market is primarily regarded as a forecasting instrument it, too, will have much to say concerning the fall outlook. It should provide a fairly quick answer as to whether or not it took a too rosy or conservative view of matters.

A push into new high ground without further ado would suggest most strongly that the steepness of the upturn so far is no reason to believe additional gains are out of the question.

• • •

Since stock prices literally live in the future it would not be a distressing sign if they turned off after their brilliant spurt upward. It would simply mean that when people everywhere failed to discern any signs of improvement last June and July it foresaw clearly the better times which are now here.

And measured by recent highs its ideas on industrial and trade revival have not yet been fulfilled.

• • •

STATE STREET NOTEBOOK

Fitting Europe into the present domestic picture is an impossible job . . . War would surely affect American trade fortunes . . . Foreign trade would probably decline sharply and commerce would suffer . . . In the event restrictions on foreign borrowing were lifted later "benefits" might accrue . . . But they would have to be weighted once again in the scales with likely ultimate default . . . And such passing gains would be great long range depressants on our economy.

'What a Life' Tops in Comedy Entertainment

By MARY X. SULLIVAN

George Abbott seems to have done it again. For Mr. Abbott in case you haven't been keeping up, seems to have found the formula for entertaining the great American public.

Just when we have dropped after "Three Men in a Horse," "Boy Meets Girl," "Brother Rat" and "Room Service," that hilarious comedy success extraordinaire, Mr. Abbott, of course, along came "What a Life," and all the Brothers who ever went to high school and that means all Brothers who ever conceivable got a break at the Wilbur Theater yesterday, are in the aisles. Once more another one for Mr. Abbott.

• • •

"What a Life" is a three act of good clean fun. There isn't a line in it that the children cannot safely hear. That's one of the nice advantages of Broadway plays. Had just clean fun. Nothing to offend.

The story is not fun. It could as funny as the hapless hero of it could be. But why has Abbott gone for truth, and ordinary, human characters, handling them with sympathy for the underdog? The play and the players are delightful. Perhaps it is because Abbott has been through the mill himself and knows.

Soft Ball: Bees: Rules: Reincarnation & Bleat

I'LL BET A DOUBLE WALNUT FUDGE SUNDAE that it was Dean Frederick Rand Rogers' idea to install that soft ball diamond on B. U.'s Commonwealth avenue property just behind the billboards where Mickey Cochrane and his shaggy he-men used to hang their hides on the picket fences and pockmark themselves on the pebbly surface during B. U.'s primitive football day. The basso roars of Mike's freshman time have changed to soprano squeals which fall more melodiously on the ear of the Phys. Ed. dilettante. How about a field for squat tag, professor?

Austen Lake

At that, soft ball is encroaching on modern masculinity. Any evening a horde of whiskery, keg-chested, adult males may be seen swiping at the pudding ball with broomstick bats in Quincy's Merrymount Park. And, Hemstitch my teddies, if the Motor Truck Club of Massachusetts isn't meeting the Private Truck drivers at soft ball out Wayland way on October 12. So, after all, maybe Dean Frederick Rand Rogers is merely keeping abreast of these let-me-call-you-sweetheart times . . .

If the Bees Had Foxx

"NEITHER BEES NOR RED SOX WILL WIN any pennants this month. But there are the pennant makings in Boston, by matching Joe Cronin's hitting with Red Sox hitting and comparing both to the Yankees when Foxx is out of the game." But what a world results, for instance, when Bees outslug Red Sox pitching when Foxx is in the game? Or suppose Foxx, A. L. Quarry Boss, hits a home run with the bases loaded in the ninth inning with the Red Sox behind, 11 to 9? The record 112 runs scored.

The result would have been devastating on the fortunes of the Pirates, Giants, Cubs and Reds. For the way the Bees play the game, 100 more runs would have amounted to some thirty more victories. Well, let's be conservative and say that J. E. Foxx would have meant a dozen more games to the Bees, or just the difference between their fifth place position and the league's ridgepole. Still, at current book values the Bees will require less patchwork to meet pennant standards in 1939 than the Red Sox considering that pitchers are worth four times their weight in outfielders.

College Vs. Pros

POINT OF ARBITRATION BEFORE EVERY College All-Star vs Professional football game in which set of rules will be enforced. The college code differs radically on many points from the professional book, of which these are a few samples

COLLEGE	PROS
Forward passes [illegible]	Forward passes [illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
Penalties [illegible]	Penalties [illegible]
On intended forward passes which [illegible]	On intended forward passes [illegible]

The pros have been [illegible] to let the twelve stars use their own rules, [illegible] at Evanston last week a board of the two code was used. Due to the [illegible] effect of the college rules on officials, there was a movement on foot [illegible] to have officials from working pro games. The new college commissioner, Asa Bushnell, has [illegible] satisfaction thus far.

NEWS NOTE FROM BERLIN, GERMANY, states that ex-heavyweightmeister Max Schmeling will return to the prize ring wars next spring for another assault on the heavyweight title. Yet, last June when I sat with Max, a truly likable person under his mask of reticence, he said (minus his Teuton dialect), "I will not fight after reaching my physical decline. I have money, property and position. I want to be able to enjoy them." In other words as soon as he realized that his natural elasticity was gone he would quit, because he wanted to taste his food, smell the woodsy odors of his Pomeranian estates and watch the sun come up over his farm and fields. He didn't intend, he said, to wind up a punch-inebriated goofy, a punch blind paralytic or a saliva-drooling silly.

It just illustrates the contrariness of human nature that Max, having reached his worldly ambitions, should insist that he still fight. Of course, he may [illegible] to attack over some Danish [illegible] for a few more years. But no insurance company would [illegible] accident policy on another fight against Joe Louis.

EXCUSES BEING OFFERED FOR Narragansett's downward swoop in revenues this summer are: (1) That Walter O'Hara snitched the voluminous and official pass list, thus causing many worthy Democrats to be overlooked and, of course, outraged when the present administration issued courtesy cards; (2) that, by coincidence or otherwise, the roads leading to the gambling resort were torn up for repairs during most of the meeting and created awkward detours to the discouragement of the clientele; (3) the copious rains and hot weather; (4) the first-time conflict with the dog races at Taunton.

But what the Narragansett proprietors don't wish to recognize and hence have no added to their bleat is a fifth and final excuse. It is that the people are thinning out of fresh money and inclination to spend what they have left on convulsions, recrimination and remorse.

Max Baer Must Enter Tourney / Johnston Is Ally Of Mike Jacobs

By JACK CONWAY

AS PART OF his heavyweight tournament to select a suitable opponent for Joe Louis, Mike Jacobs will try to discover if Max Baer still can fight. Baer has been attempting to walk direct into a championship tussle with Louis, but this now appears out of the question. If Baer is to get another crack at the "Brown Bomber," he will have to prove he is entitled to it.

Mr Boston

The original plans called for a Louis-Baer bout this month. The proposed match was shelved when the Louis management discovered that 50 per cent of the champion's purse would go to the various tax collectors. Possibly if some of the tax collectors had agreed to take a few of the punches Louis might have agreed to meet Baer, but the tax collectors hid behind Rule 1001 of their code which holds that in every instance Old Jawn Public is the one who must take socks on the whiskers.

The public also gave the Louis-Baer match the chill. It had just been hit for $30 for ringside seats for less than three minutes of scrapping in the Louis-Schmeling bout, and it probably felt it had taken enough punishment for one year.

The record is showed Baer had not done much fighting in his last meeting with Louis, and there wasn't any guarantee that he would in any bout on a return contest.

Pastor-Barlund Winner for Max

BAER WILL be offered a bout with the winner of the 15 round [illegible] between Bob Pastor of New York and Gunnar Barlund of Finland at the New York Garden on October 7. It is understood that Mike Jacobs is planning to offer Max a [illegible].

Pastor is one of the better young heavyweights. He has speed, boxing ability, courage, generalship and better than an average punch.

Bob also has Jimmy Johnston as his guiding ring genius which is quite an asset. Jimmy always has those boxers in whom he is interested well trained, while he has the ability to inspire the men under his direction to brilliant ring efforts.

Promoting Pastor against Barlund at the Garden is also proof of the close relationship existing between Johnston and Mike Jacobs. It became [illegible] Jacobs' bid the fight to oust Johnston as matchmaker at the Garden but he soon found that the "Boy Banker" was very resourceful even though not in a key spot.

Jacobs decided Johnston could be of assistance to him in bally-hooing an opponent for Louis, and so peace was made at a tea party.

Barlund, a native of St. Paul, Minn., who was known during the days of Princess Baba and her wrestling husband, Bob Gregor, [illegible] was also a boxing promoter in Europe and brought Barlund to this country.

Barlund is a rugged two-fisted plodder who keeps throwing leads every second he is in the ring. In his last important start he knocked out Buddy Baer. He also stopped Frankie Connelly who used to box under the direction of Jack Sharkey and Johnny Buckley.

"Don't underrate Barlund," said Buckley when informed of the Pastor-Barlund bout. "Barlund is a pretty good fighter, and will give Pastor a lot of trouble."

More Boxing Cake for Garden

UNDER MIKE JACOBS' new deal with the Garden, the Hearst-Tex Rickard is cut in for a larger piece of the boxing cake.

Col. John Reed Kilpatrick refers to his new contract with the Twentieth Century Club as an agreement between "landlord and tenant," but the terms of the agreement virtually make the Garden and Mike Jacobs equal partners.

The Garden contributes its building and its Bowl, while Jacobs gives Joe Louis, Henry Armstrong and the services of his Twentieth Century organization. Profits and losses are shared equally.

These arrangements reduce Jacobs' risks, while it will also cut the profits in two when the boxing boom continues.

As part of the new deal, Jacobs has agreed to promote bouts in the Detroit Olympia and in the Chicago Stadium. The Olympia and the Stadium are controlled by Jim Norris who is also a director in the New York Garden.

It was Norris who engineered the deal between the Garden and Jacobs. It has been on the fire since last winter when Norris gave Jacobs the Miami rights to the Sonja Henie show. Sonja was under contract with the Chicago Stadium.

JOE CRONIN will have his day at Fenway Park tomorrow. It is expected that the Red Sox manager will receive a splendid tribute from the baseball fans of New England.

Cronin has had one of his best years in baseball. His batting and fielding have been of the best, while he has been able to rally his club when it was hit by injuries and disappointments.

Police Commissioner Joe Timilty is chairman of Joe Cronin Day, and has the full support of everybody interested in baseball.

Yanks Here Tomorrow

For the first time since he broke into the major league wars the Yanks as a visiting club of Joe Cronin will be given a day tomorrow by Red Sox open game engagement with the high flying Yankees.

Although the Sox are [illegible] behind the Broadway boys, they are in second place and Boston baseball fandom is expected to pack Fenway Park to pay homage to the popular Texas lieutenant.

Honored by the scouts and supplied with plenty of leadership have been Joe's daily recipe since taking the Washington helmsman to the American League pennant in his first year as a manager in the.

And although he hasn't led the Sox to any pennant during his five years here, he still is rated the outstanding shortstop in the game and a never say die fighter.

His players, spurred on a new high recently when he was elected the most valuable player in the American League by Baseball Writers, have been fired. Last July he was a member of the American League all-star team.

Cronin's name to the Boston team is respected by every fan, but anyone who has followed the Yankee star realizes that respect is due to his position.

On the road some of the Red Sox don't see as much as they do before, but not so. Detroit fans [illegible] Boston fans [illegible] when we [illegible] Yankee [illegible] expected [illegible] home.

Budge to Desert Amateur Ranks

DON BUDGE JOHN BROMWICH

Johnny Bromwich congratulates Don Budge on his efforts which practically single handedly allowed the United States to retain the Davis Cup.

GERMANTOWN, Pa., Sept. 6—Don Budge has defended the Davis Cup for the last time.

After playing the major role in retaining this international trophy for the United States in a hectic series with Australia which terminated yesterday, friends revealed that Budge would join the ranks of the money getters right after the National singles championships at Forest Hills.

Budge has taken all the possible laurels he can as a "pure" and wants to cash in on his ability before he passes his prime. The world's greatest star will probably tour with Ellsworth Vines and Fred Perry.

The Californian was at the peak of his game yesterday. He turned by the Anzec in straight heats, 8—6, 6—1, 6—2, as the veteran Quist fell victim of elementary foot faults and collapsed amidst the hoots of 9000, most of whom believed the foot fault judge had been too harsh with the final hope of the hopelessly outclassed men from Down Under.

The foot faults, called by Harold La Hair, were justly called. All the judges and non-playing Captain Harry Hopman of the Australian team admitted so.

Quist, a notorious offender of the fault foot rule, became too anxious as he led Budge, 6—5, in the initial set. It was then that he was first called—twice in a row—and as suddenly he lost his temper and balance on the baseline. Budge, quick to take advantage, ran right out to win three games and the set.

Never again was he headed or threatened. It took him only 38 minutes to win the concluding two sets over which he yielded but three games, two of them quite graciously at love.

A'S ONCE OWNED TABOR

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—After that timely single, which tied up the first game with the Dodgers yesterday, Charlie "Butch" Sutcliffe, the Fall River boy, has won his spurs with the Bees. Before the game, Casey Stengel said "that boy Sutcliffe looks like a good hitter." So, again Ol' Case was right . . . Vince DiMaggio and Johnny Lanning are celebrating birthdays today . . . Dickie Maloney, the Concord High School boy, is making this trip . . . Dave Morey is on his way to Eaton Center, N. H., where the Bates varsity football squad will train. As college doesn't open until Sept. 29th, the Bates squad will go to Hanover to play Dartmouth before appearing in Lewiston, Me. . . . Charlie Root, the veteran Cub pitcher, is a wood patternmaker by trade . . . Jack Blott, the Wesleyan football coach, is recuperating from an appendix operation at his home in Girard, Ohio . . . Bobby Sauer, younger brother of George Sauer, of Nebraska football fame, has enrolled at the University of Alabama . . . Tom Yawkey is sponsoring the Silver Falls Lumber Company team at Silverton, Oregon . . . "Pop" Warner, who is 67 years of age, has started his 44th season as a football coach . . . Bob Logan, who was recently shipped back to Indianapolis by the Cubs, has been around. He's been with eight clubs in seven leagues . . . Bill Martin, who made a name for himself as a golfer in Rhode Island, has practically quit the links for baseball . . . Jim Tabor, the Red Sox rookie third baseman, signed a contract with Connie Mack before tying up with the Yawkeymen. He was under age when Connie Mack sold him the idea of joining the A's. The Red Sox did business with his father . . . Orin Hockett, who played left field in the second game for the Dodgers, looks like a pretty good sticker. He's played most of his baseball in his home town, Dayton, Ohio. A few years ago, he quit organized ball and joined the semi pros. He's 28 years of age . . . Johnny Cronev claims that he never saw a worse sun field than that which he patrolled yesterday. So, it's no wonder that the Dodger outer gardeners collapsed . . . Johnny Lodigiani, who started the season with the Athletics but is now with Williamsport, of the Eastern League, was a fighter before he turned his attention to the national pastime. His inability to solve southpaw opponents was responsible for him losing his taste for the squared circle. Casey Stengel hopes to catch the Giants before we leave for Philly Thursday night . . . New Honors for Lou

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (INS)—Lou Gehrig, baseball's "iron man," claimed new laurels today.

The New York Yankee first baseman tied one of Babe Ruth's old records and broke another on Labor Day. When his double against the Athletics scored Crosetti, Lou equalled the Bambino's feat of batting in 100 or more runs for 13 seasons. Later when Lou rode home aboard Bill Dickey's homer, he became the first player to score 100 or more runs for 13 seasons.

'Pure' Matmen In Arena Show

At least 12 wrestling bouts are scheduled tomorrow night at the Boston Arena when in addition to the regular show, there will be one hour of amateur wrestling starting at 8 p. m.

Amateurs will wrestle under professional rules and it is expected a great outpouring of would be matmen will turn out.

So far the list consists of a truckman, iron welder, plumber, doctor and a chauffer. With this assortment of strong men anything may happen and the fans will see something entirely new in wrestling.

In the main bout tomorrow night Bull Curry, Chicago's public enemy No. 1 returns to Boston with 51 victories and hopes to add another to his list when he meets the Great Firpo of Argentina.

Peabody Outlook Great

Boasting nine veterans from its highly successful 1937 eleven as a nucleus, the Peabody high school football team has been practicing twice a day under Coach Bill Seeglitz for its opener under lights with Lynn Classical at Manning Bowl, Friday, September 16.

Although Seeglitz has tried to quiet the "state championship" talk, the Tanners with a 200 pound forward wall making things easier for a fast and experienced backfield, are slated to go places.

With St. John's of Worcester, Lawrence, Lynn English, Beverly, Woburn, Waite High of Toledo, Salem, Cambridge Latin and Gloucester following Classical in that order, Seeglitz and his Tanner crew realize that they have a chance to make football history for Peabody.

Bill Seeglitz

Coaches Seeglitz and Donohue have been more than satisfied the way their regulars have looked in the preliminary sessions. In Walter Kushnerick, Carl Wettergreen, Dom Gearsomowicz and Jack Sweeney, the Tanners have 800 pounds of what was the best guard-and-tackle combination in the North Shore last year. These youngsters (they're all under 18) played last fall as a unit.

GREAT CENTER

In the middle of the line Peabody has a veteran 60-minute player in 190 pound Tom Alberghini. An un-erring center passer with a nose for breaking up forwards while on defense, Alberghini will be a big help to his team.

On one wing, Seeglitz has young Sol Katzman who came up from the scrubs last October. Bill Gibney, Ray Schervinsky and Bob Fuller, all of whom saw service last year, will fight it out for the other job.

Seeglitz's starting backfield will be the same that worked as a unit in beating Lynn English, Salem and Gloucester last fall. It packs raw power, finese and climax running with the usual Tanner emphasis on effective blocking and tackling. In John "Nanny" Bezemes Peabody has a triple threat star

In Chris Brady, the Tanner's have one of the hardest charging backs ever to be developed in the North Shore. Last year he personally accounted for more than 500 yards, averaging better than five yards a rush.

Ernie Blair, who will team with Brady as a fullback, is the fastest man on the squad. "Buzz" Surman will be the fullback. Seeglitz considers him one of the best blocking backs he's ever seen in interscholastic football, and the coach comes from the West.

"Sure we'll have a good team," says Seeglitz, who's no Gloomy Gil Dobie. "But note we are only one deep.', And that according to Seeglitz, is the one big "if" which may keep his "good" team from becoming "great."

Yardage galore in that trusty right foot. Romo Verringia is expected to help the Malden High School cause quite a bit this fall with his kicking.

Gold Cup Goes To Italian

DETROIT, Sept. 6 (INS)—Count Theo Rossi of Italy today held America's most coveted motorboat racing prize, the gold cup.

Rossi turned in a neat performance in the Detroit river basin yesterday and impressed the 75,000 fans despite the fact his major opposition was elliminated by accidents and motor trouble.

Five of the eight boats entered failed to finish. Three didn't even start. Two, the cup defender, Notre Dame, and the new Horace E. Dodge boat, Excuse Me, were sunk.

Rossi made the win authentic, however, by setting a new world record for a three-mile lap, averaging 72.707 m.p.h. in an early lap of the first heat.

He won each heat of the 90-mile event, with only Miss Golden Gate, the home-made speedster driven by two young San Francisco boys, Dan Arena and Don Foster, offering competition. And their boat was lapped in the first and third heats.

Mass. on Top

Takes Three Titles

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 6 (INS)—Massachusetts tennis players today held three of the four New England public parks championships.

The men's doubles champions were Oral Lamica, of Chicopee, and Toddy Heckler, of Springfield. They won from the New Bedford pair of Ed Twarog and Joseph Filipek, 6—4, 7—9, 6—1, 6—3.

Claire Ellert, of Holyoke captured the women's singles championship by trouncing Josephine Rossini, of Bristol, 6—1, 6—1.

She then teamed with Gloria Bisallion, also of Holyoke, and defeated Miss Rossini and her sister, Ida, 6—4, 6—1.

Schoolboy Jottings

After a 10-day sojourn at Camp Ousannequin, a Y. M. C. A. camp in Halifax, Mass., Dedham and Danvers High School football squads will resume practice on their home gridirons today. Coach Jack Heaphy's Dedham squad of 30, and Coach Charlie Vye with 25, broke camp Saturday afternoon after having a successful "spring" campaign.

Both teams already have had the taste of scrimmage.

While at the camp the squads had the opportunity of having Al Kowal, one of Boston University's assistant football coaches, give them a helping hand. Also one of the directors at the camp, Kowal readily assisted and gave the boys some valuable pointers.

The long awaited decision as to who will succeed Clarence N. Amiott as head football coach at Fitchburg High, will be announced at the conclusion of the Physical Education committee and the school board meeting this afternoon. Also to be appointed will be a new physical department head.

Bismarck Makes Good With Eagles

The town of Natick is noted for a number of things, including an annual output of classy college athletes.

At Boston College, Andy Bismarck, right halfback on the first teams seems destined to carry the torch of the town this year.

Andy Bismarck

Bismarck came to Boston College three years ago as just another student in a class which included such schoolboy grid firebrands As Fella Gintoff, Al Horsfall, Ira Jivilikian, Dan McFadden, Captain Billy Flynn and Ralph Worth. In his two years Andy got along, but that's about all. Last year he really came into his own in the Columbus Day scoreless tie with Pop Warner's Temple team.

Against the Philly team, Bismarck was the whole offensive show, almost pulling the game out of the fire on more than one occasion. He ran with reckless abandon, shot a few passes and even tried his hand at kicking when Captain Tony DiNatale was forced out with an injury.
